SIR:

RESPONSE TO THE OFFICE ACTION MAILED OCTOBER 27, 2003

Please replace the Abstract with the following:

Facilitating application reuse in web-based applications. A method embodiment includes providing a distributed application having parent and child components.

The parent component is served by a first server, and the child component is served by a second server. A link to the child component on the second server is specified using a linked application form in the parent component. The child component is supplied with a context identifying the parent component and the first server. An exit form and the generated context is used to define a flow that returns from the child component and continues in the parent component.
